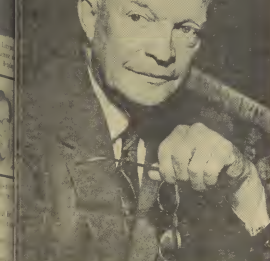
Ike Avalanche Sweeps Election



AGAIN VICTORIOUS—Dwight David Eisenhower was re-elected for another term as President of the United States in Tuesday's election.

Ballot Battle Still Rages For Congress Control

NEW YORK, (INS)—A President Eisenhower re-election victory avalanche thundered on Wednesday but a furious battle marked by spectacular upsets raged for control of Congress.

Adlai E. Stevenson, twice-beaten Democratic presidential nominee, told the President that his overwhelming triumph was an "expression of the great confidence of the American people" in their Republican chief executive.

The record outpouring of votes which appeared likely to give Ike and Vice President Richard M. Nixon a majority of 10 million votes over Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver came amid an epidemic of ticket-splitting which threw the Congressional fight into confusion.

EARLY WEDNESDAY, Democrats and Republicans were locked in a tight struggle for control of the Senate. The outcome hinged on neck-and-neck contests in Illinois, Pennsylvania, California, Kentucky, Oregon, Nevada and South Dakota.

The GOP won Senate seats previously held by the Democrats in New York and West Virginia, but the Democrats apparently arrested seats from the Republicans in Ohio and Idaho.

In the House fight, the Democrats had won or held good leads on the races for 218 seats.

The President's tremendous victory reflected the decision of the American people to entrust the soldier-statesman in the White House with guidance of the nation at a time of new world crisis.

WARFARE IN the Middle East and Soviet tyranny in Central Europe were taken into account by the millions of voters who crossed party lines to vote for Ike and Nixon

When a weary but undaunted Stevenson conceded defeat Eisenhower already was certain of a victory surpassing his 1952 triumph.

Coeds Reminded to Vote Today For The Man They Prefer Most

Coeds are reminded that the polls open Wednesday at 6:45.

Brigham Young University's election for the Preferred Men commences Wednesday and will run for three days, announced Luana Schow, chairman of Preference Ball Week.

Voting booths will be in the lobbies of the Smith, McKay and Spring Science Buildings, and will be open until 4:00 p. m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

It is necessary for the girls to know both the name and address of the fellow she prefers.

On Saturday double invitations will be mailed. Each girl will receive one telling who her date is, and the fellows will receive one containing the same information. It is up to the fellow to call and confirm the date by Nov. 14

Nov. 17 is the evening when "Estrellita," which means little star in Spanish, will shine The dance will be held in the Social Hall, Smith Fieldhouse, and the National Guard Armory

The halls will be decorated like that of a large Spanish patio and will feature a fountain, silhouettes, flowers, benches, gullies, etc. A large Spanish fan will serve as the frame for the dances band. The dance is semi-formal.

Former Utahns Give Endowment For Music Foundation At BYU

DR. WALTHER Mathesius, former president of Geneva Steel Company, and Mrs. Mathesius will return to Provo Thursday to establish the Mathesius Music Foundation at Brigham Young University.

The couple, who endeared themselves to Utahns both in cultural and business circles while residing in Utah, will formally present their endowment at a studentbody assembly in the Smith Fieldhouse Thursday at 11 a.m Harvey L. Taylor, assistant to the president of BYU, will accept for the University. Both Dr and Mrs Mathesius will speak.

THEY HAVE built up a substantial sum by deposits at BYU over several years. It will be used to promote music and music education at the University.

Appropriately, the gift will be presented on the day of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra concert in the Smith Fieldhouse

Dr. Mathesius is a German by birth. He received the degree of doctor of engineering from his father at the Institute of Technology, Berlin-Charlottenburg, in 1911, and came to the United States the same year. He was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of science at Brigham Young University in June, 1951.

THE MATHESIUSES will be honored guests at the BYU concert and also at the performance of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra in the Salt Lake Tabernacle Wednesday under the sponsorship of the McCune School of Music and Art. Both concerts begin at 8:15 p.m.

Now residents of Geneva, Ill., Dr. Mathesius and his wife, Ebba, are fondly remembered for their great services to industry and music in Utah. Dr. Mathesius was president of Geneva Steel Company from the date of its organization, Aug. 18, 1943, until his retirement, Dec 1, 1951.

Mrs. Ebba Mathesius is an accomplished musician and writer and patron of the arts In her early years she trained for a career as a concert pianist. She has been extremely active in helping musical organizations in Provo and Salt Lake City and has encouraged many young musicians. She was greatly responsible for the success of the 1951 spring festival of the Federated Music Clubs of America in Salt Lake City.

BYU Voters Challenged By Demos

BRIGHAM Young University student voters were being challenged at Provo polls Tuesday, Democratic Party "checkers," in what appeared to be an effort to cut down on the traditional Republican landslide in four Provo districts, were reported to be challenging each single student attempting to vote.

According to the Utah County Clerk's office, the students were allowed to vote after signing an affidavit swearing legal residency in the city and district.

USE OF THE affidavits will be made if the elections are contested after results are announced.

Students signing affidavits will be hailed into court and ordered to prove their eligibility to vote, the clerk's office said.

If residency is not established the student must disclose, under oath, how he voted and the vote will be discarded.

Districts where challenges were reported are 12th, south of campus from 4 East to 7 East; 35th, north of campus; 36th, East of campus; and 37th, from 7 East to 9 East on the south edge of the campus.

UTAH STATE election laws prohibit students and servicemen from becoming registered voters in the state.

A ruling from Attorney General E. R. Callister allows students to vote, providing they sign the residency affidavit, the clerk's office said.

A clerk's office spokesman said married students have been allowed to establish residence if they make their home in Provo.

Several hundred voters were reported to have been challenged during the day.

It is the first election in which either party has challenged student voters, a worker said.

Application Correction

Applications for Thets Alexis may be picked up in the IOC office instead of the coordinator's office as announced in Tuesday's Universe, according to Diane Hatch, chairman.

A Paradox . . .

Dear Editor,

Joe Klein apparently has such a whole hearted dislike for Senator Watkins that he has chosen to misinterpret the Senator's gesture of respect for Senator Knowland in the Devotional held Oct. 25.

I was somewhat surprised to read that the Minority Leader of the Senate of the United States and one of our delegates to the United Nations was referred to by Mr. Klein as "just anyone with a name." Considering our miserable attendance at the assembly, perhaps Senator Watkins' polite gesture was a lesson on respect which we sadly need.

However, Mr. Klein has chosen to view Senator Watkins' action as an insult to the "individuality" of the students here at the BYU. Mr. Klein might be interested to know that "individuality" is a relatively meaningless word in this division land. It is a paradox that we tend to feel most free when we're acting like everyone else.

No Usher, No Seat

Dear Editor,

I don't know the policy on reserving seats at assemblies, but since "saving seats" has been made such an issue, it might be wise for someone to clarify it.

I was politely asked to move from my front row seat in the south (second seats between the first three rows (the best in the house) were "reserved', for the Spur ushers.

Come to find out, it wasn't reserved for just the ushers but for any Spur member who desired a reserved seat.

What sank on the three rows weren't taken up by Spur members were used for book and/or coat racks, left empty, or given to his evidently "honorary" male Spurs I'm sure those standing at the exit to the stairs would have appreciated those empty seats.

First come, first served should apply to everyone, including Spurs or any other unit not doing actual usher duty.

Journalistic Gem . . .

Dear Editor,

ANOTHER gem of journalistic purity has floated down from the Holy Citadel of The Daily Universe (Tower, Oct. 29)

In a silly piece of remarkably inept commentary, a blindly biased and politically immature writer for the Daily Universe unleashed a drivel of cute ridicule upon the speech and personality of Senator William Knowland of California, who visited here.

DESPITE the fact that Senator Knowland, whose office is not being contested, honored this University by his visit, DESPITE he should shrewd wade all common Journalistic courtesy and proceeded to write up the Knowland visit in the form of a slanted news item, DESPITE the utter absurd comments, and then tried to pass off this blind lack of intelligence as something worth reading.

IT MUST agree with Miss Arnold that any studentbody seemed bored at times during the assembly, most of the content and subtleties of the Senator's address went over the head of the larger part of those present, including Miss Arnold.

It is a standard procedure on this campus for the studentbody to be ignorant of the meaning and purpose of politics and government, particularly the niceties of campaigning

MISS ARNOLD mentions that everyone must be tired of campaigning. I sincerely doubt that she has ever seen a real campaign and knew what was going on. As for the studentbody seeming to be tired of politics, I think that it did quite well, except for one member who missed the boat and sad so in print.

Give it to 'Em . . .

Dear Editor,

I AM frequently impressed by the articles appearing in the "Safety Valve." More frequently than not this impression I gain leaves me with the feeling that the writer is writing a diatribe merely to fulfill the desire of seeing his name in print. An outstanding example of this is the article concerning Senators Watkins and Senator Wallace Joe Klein (Daily Universe, Oct. 21).

It amazes me no small bit when I read the statements and imputations written by Mr. Klein. I, for one, cannot have attended a much different assembly than the one that I was seated inside the Fieldhouse at 11:00 on October 25.

JOE, WHAT is it that you have against Senator Watkins that prompts ridiculous statements against him as you do?

. . . "standing ovation" neglected by Senator Watkins," "failing at that (putting in his bit on the stage) and he is quite plainly grasping at my straw," are the words I observed, at least, that all of his powers of observation can't really be gone he tries to show off in front of the BYU members.

I like Senator Watkins, if he engineered the "standing ovation" mentioned, I'm the first to his feet. Two students sitting a few rows in front of me, as the Senator did see, arose first. They were followed closely by other scattered others, then the California Club and then the rest of those congregated, including Watkins.

IN THE second place are you such a keen psychologist that from afar you can size up the studies and arrive at the amazing conclusion that Senator Watkins is trying to bolster his vanity?

I'm for giving great men, such as those mentioned by Joe, standing ovations in appreciation for outstanding work. I'm also for giving a great man, a man of outstanding principles as well as accomplishments, Bill Knowland, a standing ovation.

Parking Good . . .

Dear Editor,

Having been at Brigham Young University for two years fees were inaugurated and having seen the local opposition to the fees, I welcome an indication of the situation elsewhere would be.

Frankly, we have smiled many times at the students who "How preposterous the fees were" in comparison with the situation.

Clyde Parker

(Ed. Note: Parker enclosed a clipping from the University of Minnesota Daily which tells of a campus parking plan by which students may lease parking space for "about $4.50 per month." This fee reserves a place in the campus parking lot anytime excepting afternoon football games and is being tried on an experiment by the student Congress.)

Frowns on Latecomers . . .

'Flawless, Exquisite' Styling Of Vienna Soprano Praised

by Laree Dunn Carter
Daily Universe Music Critic

BRIGHAM YOUNG University music lovers were captivated Monday night by the exquisite voice and flawless musicianship of Irmgard Seefried, the charming soprano from Vienna.

Her unusual program compiled, united the audience in its depth and variety. Usually concerts of this type begin with a group of early Italian or English songs followed by a group of German, then French, an aria, and ending with a group of contemporary numbers.

MISS SEEFRIED'S program, however, was strongly accented throughout with German art songs, including her two encores.

She presented the long, difficult concert with ease and poise. Her audience never felt that she was pushed to the limits of her ability.

Of course, the group of German-Lieder was most outstanding, due, no doubt, to the song's background and musicality. Her legatio line was smooth and flowing throughout, though, at times, particularly in the English songs, her vowels became too open and nasal.

MISS SEEFRIED'S high tones were bell-like and beautifully ringing. They became harsh and strident only when she tried too great a fortissimo. The evenness of tone quality so apparently under control was most evident in her soft lovely singing. Gretel, for instance, in the lovely "Suleikin's Lied" from the Marriage of Figaro.

Very touching was "Schwesterlein" by Brahms for which the story was made clear by her deft use of vocal color.

However, it is difficult to extoll any one part of the concert as all was flawless. It was truly an evening of "pure singing" as one listener stated.

MISS SEEFRIED'S accompanist, Paul Ulanowsky, was of great assistance to the soprano with his artistic and fine efforts at the piano. He had several of her numbers completely memorized. Would that more accompanists did the same. It was truly an evening of "pure singing" as one listener stated.

One word about the other "help" this fine singer received. It seems that the success of the concerts of this caliber are so recognized and well received, that the people come on time. Both of this year's lyceums have been criticized severely in starting because of latecomers.

It also occurs to mind that we could have the courtesy to extend to great artists such as Miss Seefried as pleasant an experience as possible by learning how to run the lights, eliminating telephone bells from the control booth, and shell chimes from the basement, particularly the nice-

The Springboard

by Dix K. Waddell

Have you seen anyone this week who deserved a hearty slap on the back for a job well done?

Our accolades, as you will see, only come in the form of words from The Springboard. Those observed in unworthy deeds will be allowed to "walk the plank."

We don't pretend to be scavengers but have you noticed what fills the waste-baskets at Brigham Young University? Candy and ice cream wrappers have exclusive option. Try maneuvering through the halls of the McKay or Science buildings during class periods. The stairs are covered with reclining students—and after the students leave, candy and ice cream wrappers indicate the presence of civilization.

* * * *

Student managers are excellent at BYU, especially the managers of our college men. We opened the library door and stood speaking to a friend who stood across and down the step from us.

Numerous students walked between us. Ninety per cent of the girls said, "Excuse me," or "Thank you." Over a twenty minute period one boy said, "Excuse me." (The rest of the fellows may have been following the girls and didn't notice us; our apologies to such an upbred student.)

* * * *

Faculty members aren't perfect all the time. Have you noticed some of them trying pray themselves (and any wing bystanders) into heaven assembly. Some persons Church position indicate the short prayers without undmention of the Lord's name desirable.

Do students sleep at night in the daytime? A few profess have maintained that it must be Wooing, from sleep-eyed stares they are ing in class. When the pr anz questions they expect a wers, not stares, fishy or dis wise. Some degree of prepa tion should be attempted quasi college students.

The Prepared professors c serve this week's boost for The Springboard. Preparati is even time consuming, and reasonably tedious, for the p fessors—and they too have o side interests.

Bells In Good Shape . . .

Carilloneur Rings Daily Concert

by Sally Ann Arnold

BRIGHAM Young University's carillon bells have been put into good repair and may now be heard in daily concert.

Minor adjustments were made recently by Karl Homan, Duarte, Calif. engineer employed by the company from which BYU's bells were purchased.

A remote control system was installed at the same time, in the Smith Building and Smith Fieldhouse. This control will enable an operator to cut out hour strikes during concerts and assemblies.

The automatic roll player on the console may be also regulated with the remote control. This should eliminate the possibility of the bells playing before assemblies are excused or too late after early dismissal of shorter assemblies.

A DIRECT wire was also installed from the bell amplifier to radio stations for direct broadcasts. Concerts on the bells may now be wire-recorded. According to Homan, wire recordings are more true reproductions of the bell's tonal quality than the automatic rolls which have been used since the bells were installed in 1964.

An inside amplifier was installed in the console room so that carilloneurs may practice in the room without the sound being heard on campus.

Since the beginning of the week carillon concerts have been presented daily. It is hoped to make daily concerts traditional, according to Dr Henry J. Isaksen, student coordinator.

CONCERTS WILL be played each Sunday from 3-3:15 p.m. and Monday from 11:50 a.m.-12:05 p.m. "Come, Come Ye Saints" will be played before each week's devotional assembly and "The Spirit of God Like A Fire Is Burning" may be heard by students leaving devotionals.

Wednesday's presentation will be from 9-9:15 p.m. "College Song" and the "Old Y Bell" will be played before and after Thursday's student assemblies. The bells will be heard on Friday between 11:50-12:05 p.m.

According to John Hyde, university carilloneur, any music can be played on the bells. Special arrangements are needed for most numbers, however.

Special homecoming concerts last Saturday and Sunday included special arrangements of such classical numbers as "Calm" week Carillon concerts have thoven's "Moonlight Sonata."

Utah Takes Sweepstakes . . .

BYU Hosts Junior Varsities In 9 School Debate Tourney

BRIGHAM Young University was host to the annual Junior Varsity Debate tournament last weekend in the Smith Building.

The nine schools that participated in the event were Dixie College, St. George; Carbon College, Price; BYU; Utah State Agricultural College, Logan; University of Utah, Salt Lake City; Idaho State College, Pocatello; Weber College, Ogden; College of Southern Utah, Cedar City; and Ricks College, Rexburg, Ida.

A total of 121 students participated in impromptu speaking, extemporaneous speaking, oratory, interpretation, after-dinner speaking and debate.

Boise State College took first place in debate and oratory and University of Utah won the sweepstakes trophy.

BYU students winning honors were: Tom Read, first in impromptu speaking and Keith Jenkins, second in impromptu speaking Martha Adams won second in oratory; Lynne Palmer came in first in interpretation and Merilyn Hamblin came in second in interpretation.

Livestock Judgers Cop Second Place In Oregon Tourney

Brigham Young University's livestock judging team placed second in overall college competition at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland, Ore. recently.

The five team members making the trip for the Oct 20 judging event with Professor Phil Shumway were Ted Pyrah, Howard Creer, Jay Longhurst, Aaron Bond and Robert Fisher.

Judging four classes each of beef, sheep, and swine, the team returned with two trophies, a large revolving plaque for first in swine judging, and a mounted Shorthorn bull for second place in beef judging. The trophies are on display in the Animal Husbandry department.

Individual honors went to Ted Pyrah, second high man in all events in the contest; to Howard Creer, third high man in the contest and second high man in sheep judging; to Robert Fisher, high man in swine judging; and to Aaron Bodd, high man in Hereford and Shorthorn cattle judging.

Flag Football Playoffs Slated To Start Nov. 10

THE INTRAMURAL program at Brigham Young University is moving along well, with flag football competition drawing to a close, and several other sports getting underway according to Bill Hafen, intramurals director.

Providing weather conditions permit, league play in flag football will draw to a close on the evening of November 10. At that time two teams from each of the six leagues will be chosen to participate in the all-school play-off tournament.

LEADING teams in each of the leagues at the present time are: Western League — Kuhle Katze and Garitre M ; Eastern League — Scandale Wet and Blackouts; Southern League — Chaffey Tigers, Gone Johns and D-5 "B"; Northern League — House of Tod and D-5; Ivy League — Hawaiian Club, California Club and Allen Hall 1; Skyline League — Tausigs and Brigham.

Entries for the Co-educational Archery Tournament close Thursday. The tournament will be held on the field west of the Stadium House at 10 a.m. Saturday. Competition will be held in both target and field archery.

THE ANNUAL cross-country run will be held during the halftime activities of the Brigham Young University-University of Wyoming football game November 17.

Entries for this event close November 16.

The run is 6.6 miles in length and is open to all men students. Two first place medals will be awarded for the run. The first varsity track man to cross the finish line, and one to the first non-varsity track man to finish.

Entries for what is expected to be the largest intramural basketball tournament ever held at BYU close November 29.

The BYU Stake M-Men basketball tournament will conducted in coordination with the intramural basketball program, a move which should increase the number of participants considerably, according to Hafen.

Ward teams will be grouped into leagues separate from other participants. The winning ward teams have a chance to participate in the regional church M-Men tournament play-offs.

It is reported that several wards already have organized teams and begun practice sessions.

Cats Will Stay With Air Game, States Mentor

THAT WAS A whale of a game your boys played," said New Mexico coach Dick Clausen to Coach Harold Kopp after the Cougars laced the Lobos 23-12.

"If you play like that from now on you're going to win some ball games," the Lobo mentor went on.

Coach Kopp, appreciative of the spirited play of the Cougars, lauded his boys, "That was a wonderful demonstration wasn't it?"

THE AFFABLE Cougar coach said that BYU would continue its passing against Denver, Wyoming and Air Force Academy.

"The passing really broke the New Mexico defense wide open," said Kopp. "They were using a four man line which let our backs run." BYU racked up 240 yards on the ground compared to 206 in the air.

"We were penalized a lot partly because the officials might have been a little confused on our shift, partly because the boys were so aggressive."

"I'VE NEVER before coached a team, or heard of a team to throw 80 some passes in two games (81, my kind of a team) makes the forward pass our best weapon and it opens up our ground attack," said Kopp.

BYU threw 38 passes against Utah State and 43 against New Mexico.

"Allan Davis has done a wonderful job in coaching all our pass patterns. We've got over 20 different pass patterns and options. Also Carrol Johnson has done great at calling the plays," concluded Kopp.

Said the Senior to the Freshman: "I'll give you some advice. Before you buy your sporty car, See Jack's—they're better priced!"

WYOMING University's 21-0 conquest of Utah State gives the Pokes a commanding lead in the Skyline conference and a potential bowl bid.

With only Brigham Young University and Montana left, the Cowboys can sew up at least a tie for the bunting if they can best inept Montana in Missoula next Saturday.

SKYLINERS suffered rough treatment in intersectional games on Saturday as Wyoming crushed Utah, 21-0; Montana State drubbed Montana, 33-12, in a traditional battle, and Xavier of Ohio trounced Colorado A & M, 27-14.

Only Denver came through against the Cougars, thrashing San Jose State, 35-26.

BYU surprised everybody with its stunning win over the Lobos of New Mexico.

JIM CRAWFORD, Wyoming's All-American candidate, again led the Cowpoke attack with a full brilliant performance. Had the Aggies, Crawford ripped off tackle for 67 yards in the second quarter and the Pokes were on their way to a smashing victory.

The Cowboys' defense effectively bottled up Utah State's all-American potential, Jack Hill, and stifled the Aggies' passing in the frigid Logan weather.

WHIPPED decisively by little Montana State, Montana is expected to give Wyoming little trouble Saturday.

The following week the Cowpoke pass defense will receive an acid test in Provo against the aerial-crazy BYU.

The Cougars administered a thorough drubbing to New Mexico, rolling to a total of 446 yards —206 by passing—despite being penalized 109 yards. Next week BYU takes its "pitch and catch" exhibition to Denver, which looked good against San Jose State.

INJURY-RIDDLED Utah was no contest for Rice, an "also-ran" in the tough Southwest Conference. Next week the Utes have a brief respite at Colorado A & M before jumping from the Rice "frying pan" into the Colorado University "fire," the Buffaloes having given fits to Oklahoma, 27-19. Rated as the nation's top team, the Sooners, who haven't lost a conference game since 1946, had to overcome a 19-6 Colorado halftime lead.

Soccer Team Play Cancelled Until January

THE BRIGHAM Young International Soccer Club will not see action as a unit until January, it was reported by Howard Gill, club president.

The BYISC was planning on joining the "A" division of the Utah Soccer Association in Salt Lake City during the early part of October. However, two tournaments prevented such a move.

THE SOCCER Association started play in August, and if the BYU club joined the association they would have been put at the bottom of the league standings.

The other preventing factor was that the association at present is for Utah soccer teams. Another entry would upset the balance of the league and force re-scheduling of games.

HOWEVER, the soccer association has started a "B" league, and proposed alternations in both the "A" and "B" leagues in January may make it possible for the BYISC to enter.

Last year the BYU team played as an independent, and began this season in the same status. Due to the fact that there were an equal number of teams in the Utah Association the BYU players found themselves without competition this year.

IN AN ATTEMPT to keep some of the team playing together until January several of the BYISC players will join the Alemania team in Salt Lake City.

Alemania is the team that defeated the BYU club two weeks ago.

The Soccer Club will hold a meeting to discuss their future Thursday night in room 140, Smith Building, at 7:30 p.m.

According to Gill, all interested persons are invited to attend this meeting

Cougars Eye Pioneers After Dumping Lobos

by Mark Murphy

WITH NEW MEXICO'S battered Lobos lying in their wake, Brigham Young University's revenged Cougars take their aerial circus to Denver for a Saturday set-to with Denver University's powerful Pioneers.

Judging from the Pioneer's showing against San Jose State last Saturday night, the Cougars are in for a rough afternoon against a Pioneer team which has suddenly caught fire after a disappointing start. The Pioneers whomped the Spartans 35-26 for their third straight win.

DENVER fared miserably in the first half of the season, four out of five losses, but driving hard in the stretch to wins over Colorado College, Western State and San Jose State.

According to scouting reports Denver displayed much improvement in trampling California team and also against the air.

AL YANOWICH, a Pennsylvania import, has been the spearhead for the Pio. So this year Yanowich performed as a regular right halfback year but has rounded into a nite offensive threat after a slow start.

The Pioneers and the Co stack up evenly in weight their starting lineups, how the Coloradoans are as mo Denver deep in every position

THE PIONEER line is an ed by veteran end Ernie who is an agile pass rec Don Griebel, 1953 and 54 s handle the punting and is strong on the star

Tackle has been a difficul with injuries and lack o perience hampering the Pio Bob Gerber, a junior from pound sophomore, is one o starting tackles and is the man on the team.

RALPH MEYER, 220 pou heads the guards who are bo and strong this year

The backfield is the str of the Denver team with e ience and speed to spare Bob Gerber, Pete Field and cheral chores, with Gene Denver's leading ground gain Johnny Wilson, converted back. Dick Gupton, hero o heads the quarters who are year veteran Bill Korn an the "pile-driver" type.

DENVER has good all-ar speed giving them a dr attack and although their defense has been porous, allow at least two touchdowns to a they have been tough in the

As are the Cougars.' Den a very outstanding passer weakened the Pioneer pa when Yanowich progressing rapidly.

DENVER barely edged Montana two weeks ago 26-1

Last year Denver blaste Cougars 33-0.
